We hail from the North and, in turn, from the cold. Based in Louiseville, Quebec, in Canada, Canadel’s factories are virtually encased in snow about five months of the year. It’s no surprise, then, that my fellow Quebecers know all about warming up a home—especially with our kitchen parties, a long-standing tradition that gathers friends around the wood stove in the wintertime.

Personally, fall and winter are my favorite seasons. I love to cook in my open-concept kitchen while the family chats on stools close by. Cold weather is such a great excuse for taking the time to enjoy the little things in life, and nothing tops a cozy dinner by the fire with good wine and good company.

At Canadel, we are proud of this heritage of sharing good times with friends and family—and our capacity to turn harsh weather into pure pleasure.

We are also very proud of the warm welcome our new magazine Inspired Dining by Canadel received. We were so excited to share our passion for Canadel’s beautiful, bespoke, and carefully handcrafted dining-room furniture through inspiring images and entertaining ideas, and we’re excited to know that you appreciate it.

In our second issue, you’ll find inspiration for your new dining room, as well as great living room pieces in a wide selection of styles ranging from traditional and soft contemporary to transitional and modern. Get inspired by our beautiful country chic rooms and mid-century modern aesthetics. Indulge in some hot recipes for cold days and get ready to visit Aspen, the perfect ski town. There are so many great ideas for enjoying the cold season.

Happy reading!

Marie-Christine
Marketing & Design Coordinator
Like many family businesses, the dining-room furniture manufacturer grew out of modest beginnings. Before founding Canadel, Guy Deveault, now CEO, worked in his father’s furniture factory. “I worked there every summer while I was at school,” he recalls. “I did a bit of everything, starting in the shop and working my way up to foreman.” In 1982, after their university studies, Guy and his brother Michel (today Canadel’s president) joined their father. Together they transformed an economic downturn into an opportunity. “We relaunched the business from my apartment, with nothing more than a two-drawer filing cabinet. Now that’s what you call starting from scratch!”

The two brothers quickly reaped the rewards of the honesty and straight-talking the Deveaults were renowned for in their business dealings. “Former employees came back and worked for nothing just to get us up and running! We live in a small town out in the country; everyone knows each other and lends a hand.”

Over the years, the Deveault family stuck to these values and now believes in business integrity more firmly than ever. “We often close deals with no more than a handshake, the good old-fashioned way,” says Guy Deveault. “We really enjoy our work and that comes across in our dealings with partners, suppliers, and clients. We’ve drawn inspiration from those we’ve worked with from day one.” Marie-Christine also can’t get over the way the company’s 600 employees put their hearts into their work every day—or the enjoyment they get out of it. “Everyone is so passionate about quality, whether they work in the factory or the office. Everything runs like clockwork.”

Michel and Guy Deveault learned all about job satisfaction from their father and have been able to pass it on to their own children, who also work for Canadel. Guy’s daughter, Marie-Christine, is now responsible for marketing and design coordination and she works closely with her cousin and product development manager, Jean-Philippe.

Today, Mr. Deveault Sr. is well placed to see just how successful his sons and grandchildren have been. He might be retired, but he still comes into the office every day for a coffee, a newspaper, and a chat with employees.
QUALITY, TIME AFTER TIME

Attention to detail, handcrafted workmanship, and made-to-measure furniture all set Canadel apart from the competition. Here’s how.

WORDS BY CAROLINE DÉCOSTE  PHOTOGRAPHY CATHERINE CÔTÉ

We couldn’t be further from mass production. Each and every item of Canadel furniture—for the Gourmet, Loft, Canadel, Downtown, and Champlain collections—is handmade. Every detail is given the lavish attention it deserves: from wood stain or a cushion’s last seam to leg design and ornate woodwork. Each production stage is carefully inspected to ensure that everything produced meets the high quality standards that have made Canadel’s reputation for over 30 years now.

The company even has its own wood-processing facility to ensure the most consistent quality.

“First off, depending on the collection, any knots in the wood must be filled in to give the furniture a longer life. It has to be done quickly—the resin dries in a flash—and carefully, too: the boards need to be reinforced, without detracting from their natural appearance.”

The boards are sanded next, then distressed, giving the wood a natural, aged look. It takes a deft artisan to imitate the ravages of time without damaging the wood... In other words, don’t try this at home! In fact, Canadel employees have come up with their own distressing tools, a manufacturing secret that gives certain Canadel products their unique appearance.

Tables, chairs, and stools are then stained, also by hand. The specialists look like painters with their palettes, ensuring a uniform stain for every dining-room set, and there’s no denying there’s an art to adding color while bringing out the wood’s very own natural beauty.

Then, once the chairs have been upholstered and the last quality check passed, each set is carefully packaged, ready to become your dining room’s new centerpiece.

“THIS MIGHT LOOK LIKE A SIMPLE CHAIR, BUT THERE’S A TREE INSIDE AND HOURS OF DESIGN AND MANUAL LABOR THAT GO INTO IT.”

DESIGNER TIP
A darker palette needs a showpiece color—like classic red—to direct the eye and tie the room together.

Darkness sometimes gets a bad rap in interior design; it can be associated with gloominess and shadows. But in reality, a darker space can be very dynamic and inviting—when paired with the right furniture and accessories, of course. The trick to unifying a dark space is matching tones. If the walls are a deep charcoal, for example, bring the same hue into the upholstery. If the room’s wood accents have a deep finish, match it in the furniture’s stain. Canadel’s Loft collection is a great fit for darker spaces. The pieces, made of birch wood with metal accents offer a mild industrial chic feel that livens up the space without looking out of place.

DARKER DECOR
FINISH OFF YOUR MASCULINE, DEEP-HUED SPACE WITH THESE KEY ACCENT ITEMS.

A BAR
Use a sideboard or a traditional bar cart as a landing place for a few bottles (or, even better, decanters) and simple glassware.

A RUGGED CENTERPIECE
Top off the table with a heavy bowl or platter in concrete or marble. The stone will pop against the rich wood grains.

LIGHTING
It’s important to make sure a dark palette doesn’t turn into a cave—add to overhead fixtures and natural light with simple fixtures and sconces throughout the space.

With the rare exception, a space is never defined by one item alone; it’s the sum of the elements that makes a room beautiful. That’s why, when choosing furniture, it’s so important to look at the coloring and tones of a room: is it filled with dark wood and heavy stone, or is it ultra-dark with white walls? Use our tips and tricks to ensure your space makes the most of its light—or dark—feel.

The myriad options in the Canadel collection lets you pair classic designs, like dining chairs with nailhead trim, with more modern touches.

Keeping it light
The opposite kind of space is characterized by simple white walls, natural light, and wide open spaces. Here, the trick is to add color and pattern to ground the space and prevent it from looking washed out. Avoid going overboard with a rainbow of hues—that will simply make the space look dated and gaudy—by starting with the furniture. A collection like Canadel’s flagship line, which includes a wide range of colors and patterns in the upholstery, will help to set the color palette for the room and keep the look tempered. To really make the color pop, pair bold pieces with all-white lacquered designs to connect the furniture back to its surroundings: a geometric pair of Canadel bar stools, for example, combined with an all-white pedestal table (see next page), looks put-together and timeless.

Unsure about bolder hues? You can still bring in color—just opt for pastel accents like sage green and powder rose.

The Home Office
Of course, Canadel is best known for its dining rooms. But for those looking to bring a touch of elegance to their home office, many of the brand’s pieces make beautiful desks. The sculptural-yetairy tables in the country-chic Champlain and Canadel collections, for example, offer ample workspace while keeping the office as beautiful as the rest of the home.

OLD SCHOOL

The sculptural legs of this table from the Champlain collection offer an antique feel; keep the look historic with an ornate chair, or go eclectic with a modern seat and accents.

MODERN

With an avant-garde feel and a monolithic form, this table from the Canadel collection will make a bold statement, so keep the surroundings subtle and pared back.

The Living Room

It’s one of the most versatile rooms in any house—so, it stands to reason that the furniture in your living room should be just as flexible. That’s why Canadel’s collections are such a good fit; with sideboards, benches, ottomans, tables, armchairs, and more, you can create a space that suits your own unique living style. If you like to entertain, go for lots of chairs and benches that can double as extra table space. If you like a cozy space to kick back and relax in, go for a big coffee table and a plush ottoman that keeps all the comforts close at hand.

DESIGNER TIP

Cluster decor, flowers, and books in groups of two or three to avoid overloading a sideboard, shelf, or table.

FALL FAVORITES, REBORN

Try these twists on classic comfort foods—from pulled pork mac ‘n’ cheese to onion soup with beer—to keep the crowd full and happy at your next fall gathering.
3 onions, peeled and thinly sliced (1 red, 1 white, 1 Vidalia)
1 green onion, finely chopped
1 garlic clove, finely chopped
3 tablespoons of olive oil
1 bottle pale ale
1⁄2 cup port
1⁄2 cup red wine
4 cups beef broth
1 pinch of dried thyme
1⁄2 teaspoon celery seeds
1 bay leaf
Salt and pepper
6 slices of French bread, about 1⁄2 inch thick
2 cups Swiss cheese, grated
1 cup fresh Parmesan cheese, grated

In a large pot over medium-low heat, add the olive oil and slowly caramelize half of the onions (half of each type), the garlic, and the green onion (about 20 minutes).

Deglaze with the beer and bring to a boil. Lower heat and simmer to reduce by half (about 10 to 15 minutes).

Add the rest of the ingredients (except for the bread and cheese) and season with salt and pepper to taste. Bring to a boil again and then lower heat, simmering for another 25 minutes. Remove and discard the bay leaf.

Preheat oven on broil. Pour the soup into 6 individual bowls and place a slice of bread on top of each.

Cover each bowl with the Swiss and then the Parmesan cheese. Broil until the cheese is golden crisp.
PULLED PORK MAC’N’CHEESE

YIELD: 4–6 SERVINGS

Preheat oven to 400°F (200°C).

FOR THE SAUCE

In a pot, melt butter and soften onion and garlic for 3 to 4 minutes. Season with salt and pepper. Add flour and stir for 1 minute, making sure the flour does not brown. Gradually whisk in milk and cream to obtain a smooth sauce. Simmer for 15 minutes, stirring regularly until sauce thickens.

FOR THE MACARONI

Mix half of the cheese, the pulled pork, and the pasta into the sauce. Pour the mixture into a 9 x 13 inch baking dish. Top with the rest of the cheese and sprinkle with breadcrumbs mixed with melted butter. Bake for 15 to 25 minutes or until the cheese is melted and golden.

1/4 cup butter
1 onion, finely chopped
1 garlic clove, finely chopped
1/4 cup flour
2 1/2 cups milk
1 cup 35% or 10% cream
2 cups Gouda cheese, cut into small cubes
2 cups Gruyère cheese, grated
3 cups macaroni, cooked al dente
4 cups pulled pork
1 cup panko-style breadcrumbs
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
POOR MAN’S MAPLE PUDDING

YIELD: 8 SERVINGS

FOR THE SYRUP
2 cups brown sugar
½ cup water
1 tablespoon salted butter
2/3 cup maple syrup

FOR THE CAKE DOUGH
11/3 cups all-purpose flour
¾ cup sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1/3 cup salted butter
1 egg, lightly beaten
¾ cup milk
1 capful of brown rum

Preheat the oven to 350°F (180°C).

Place all the syrup ingredients in a microwave-safe glass bowl. Heat in the microwave on high for about 4 minutes. Remove from the microwave and mix well. Transfer the mixture to a 9 x 9 inch square Pyrex-style dish.

In a bowl, combine the flour, sugar, baking powder, and salt. Add the butter. Using a fork or your hands, mix in the butter until the dough forms small pea-sized pieces.

Make a small well in the center and pour in the milk, beaten egg, and rum. Gently mix all the ingredients together until the dry ingredients are just moistened. Do not overmix. Spoon the dough onto the hot syrup, covering the entire area.

Cook in the center of the oven for 45 to 50 minutes or until a toothpick inserted in the middle comes out clean.

KEEP THINGS CASUAL
Skip the formal table for appetizers or dessert—simply set up an array of snacks on a simple cutting board or cheese tray and let your guests help themselves.

CHOOSE INTERESTING CENTERPIECES
Think beyond simple blooms to something more personal, like a seasonal terrarium with festive pine cones and other natural elements.

GET CREATIVE WITH GREENERY
Think outside the vase by arranging clusters of potted plants and cut stems in urns, cups, and more.

SUGGESTED PAIRING
Enjoy with a glass of warm rum.

USE UNIQUE PLACE CARDS
Write guests’ names on clothespins and clip them to simply folded napkins for an added touch, include a sprig of foliage.

GUEST READY

Four ways to add some pop to your next dinner party.
It’s a tale of two cities. Or, more rightly, it’s a tale of two ski towns: Aspen Glitz vs. Aspen For Skiers. Both are worth visiting.

Situated at the southeastern end of the Roaring Fork Valley, Aspen sits prettily in the midst of Colorado’s Rocky Mountains. It’s been there since prospectors founded it in 1880—those searching, and finding, silver lodes larger than their dreams were made of. Today, with 300 days of sunshine, a base altitude of about 8,000 feet, and the much-Instagrammed Maroon Bells all around, the town remains as precious as its metal.

You may know Aspen as a playground for celebrities. Yet, spend time in Aspen and you’ll witness a different side. Aspen, really, is a playground for skiers.

Its high altitude means dry air, which translates to intense sunshine and low humidity. Snow falls soft and feathery, blowing up around your ears and into your nostrils—for skiers and snowboarders, it’s manna from heaven. There are four mountains to ride—Aspen Mountain (Ajax), Snowmass, Buttermilk, and Aspen Highlands—each with a distinct personality. Terrain is a happy mix of novice, advanced, expert.
and intermediate. Better yet, its locals can ski—really ski. They ride bumps, twist through the trees, blow through powder. Yes, Aspen is a true playground for skiers.

Evenings are a treat, too, and not simply because, while eating sushi or sipping sangria, you may rub elbows with Gigi Hadid or Cash Warren. Aspen has a vast repertoire of experiences: sipping beer at the Woody Creek Tavern; sharing tales of Hunter S. Thompson by the J-Bar at Hotel Jerome; dancing on tables at the ski-in Cloud Nine atop Aspen Highlands. Or, if you’re in Aspen with family, riding the gondola at Snowmass at sunset for Ullr Nights: fire dancing, s’mores, snow tubing, and, most kids’ favorite, snowboarding.

If you’re not a skier, there’s still plenty to keep you busy. Skating. Dining. Sipping wine at the historic Little Nell. Toasting marshmallows at Viceroy Snowmass. Did we mention shopping? It’s a minting town with a twist: 235 boutiques, from fur shops to florists. As we said, it’s really two cities. Aspen has a way of speaking to everyone.

Snow falls soft and feathery, blowing up around your ears and into your nostrils—for skiers and snowboarders, it’s manna from heaven.
Beauty is in the details, and this is especially true when it comes to urban contemporary design. From the artfully tailored forms to the expertly curated materials, the look is at once elegant and effortless. The same can be said of Canadel’s recently launched Downtown collection. Walking the line between traditional and modern, it embraces down-to-earth materials, function-over-form furniture, and muted tones, creating a timeless quality that will keep the dining room looking fresh and of-the-moment for years to come. Just look at the details: countless hours went into the Downtown armchair’s...
armrest, for example—ensuring it sits at the perfect height gives the chair a balanced look while making it as comfortable as possible; and the buffet (see page 52) features a top that sits slightly inset into the surrounding wood veneer, creating a lip that keeps items from sliding off the top (and offers a chic mid-century feel).

Once you have the furniture in place, finish off your urban contemporary space with accents in a palette of simple materials and pared-back hues. Wood and leather never go out of style; evoking a fresh, open feeling, these materials ground the space and create an elegant backdrop for more transitional decor elements, like a bold painting or a brightly colored light fixture. When it comes to the color palette, a muted array or more subtle suggestion of pigment helps to keep the look fresh throughout the year. A simple wall hue shows off the natural light and shadows and lets all the elements of the space co-exist naturally without overpowering.

Trying to define country chic in a few key words is a little difficult. For one, because it can mean a number of different looks to a number of different people and has a seemingly endless list of offshoots (from farmhouse chic to shabby chic). But it’s also hard to define because it’s more of a feeling than purely an aesthetic. In short, it’s bringing the look—and inviting feel—of rural country living into the home.

The trick with the country chic look is to bring in rustic pieces without going overboard—in short, you want to evoke the feeling of a country home without doing a full transplant. Here’s an overview of the items you need for a country chic space, starting with the major pieces and moving all the way down to the final touches.

From the key furniture pieces to final decor touches, how to nail the rustic look in any space.

COUNTRY CHIC

WORDS BY PAIGE MAGARREY
PHOTOGRAPHY ANDRE RIDER

Baroque curves pair with modern upholstery options in Champlain’s dining tables and chairs.

canadel.com — Fall 2016
The main pieces

The country chic look is warm and inviting, with a focus on simple forms and down-to-earth materials. Solid wood, understandably, plays a major role in this look. It works out well, then, that virtually all of Canadel’s pieces are made from solid birch sourced from North American forests. In particular, the Champlain collection features a proprietary distressed wood finish, while the Canadel collection merges a soft contemporary feel with more traditional pieces. Working with these types of collection helps you to make the country chic look your own.

COUNTRY CHIC IS BRINGING THE LOOK— AND INVITING FEEL— OF RURAL COUNTRY LIVING INTO THE HOME.
The simple yet sleek pieces in the Canadel collection come in a wide range of finishes to suit any space. Table in Kaffe washed and chairs in Key Lime.

The accents
A beautiful country chic space looks put-together whether the pieces all match or not; this opens up the options when looking to accent a space with a buffet or sideboard. If your dining set coordinates, you might want to consider opting for the matching sideboard to complete the look. However, if you’ve opted for a more eclectic combination by mixing and matching your dining chairs and table, continue the look with a buffet in an accent color or wood finish.
The final touches

Once you’ve got your furniture selected, the fun begins: the final decor pieces can include anything from mason jars and burlap to vintage cookware and metalware. The trick is to not get too fussy—opt for a simple array of wildflowers, for example, over a perfectly posed bouquet—and to keep things simple. Not sure how much decor a space needs? Add in pieces bit by bit and walk through the space to see how you feel. When it starts to feel cluttered, pare back a bit.
With the Signature collection, any Canadel table can be custom-crafted to new sizes and dimensions.

You’re in love with a table, but even with UDesign’s bevy of custom options, it’s not the right size. Have no fear: Canadel’s bespoke services are here. With the Signature program, any of the brand’s beautiful tables can be custom-crafted to new sizes and dimensions to suit any space. Getting started is simple: measure out the space and draw out a floor plan, adding in various furniture options in different shapes and sizes to see what works best. Here are a few tips to help you get started:

TIP 1: INCORPORATE ALL THE ROOM’S CHALLENGES
Ideally, you’d start with a blank canvas and add in the furniture first before other decor and accents, but if you’re working with a space with existing pieces—a chandelier, for example, or built-in storage—be sure to include those in your floor plan.

TIP 2: DON’T BE AFRAID TO GO BIG
If your dining space is oversized, consider matching the dimensions with an oversized dining table. It might seem counterintuitive—like you’re filling up all that precious floor space—but keeping furniture to size with a space ensures it looks proportional.

TIP 3: UPSIZE THE ACCENTS
Be sure to size up other aspects of the room as well: add more chairs, beef up the light fixture, and consider putting a sculptural element on the table to keep it looking dynamic even when it’s not in use.

TIP 4: GET CREATIVE WITH SHAPES
For more irregular spaces, you can get even more creative; in a galley space, for example, an extra-long but thin table adds place settings without creating a cramped vibe.

Think beyond standard with Canadel’s Signature program.
